

Cottonwood Heights

Weekly Update for the Week of
January 31-Feb. 5, 2016

City Manager

1. Legislative issues have become a primary issue this time of year as we work to protect the interests of the City.
2. City Hall continues to take shape:

This doesn't look very high until you see it from this perspective.

The window lintels are being put into place

Police Department Report

1. This year UPD moved the beginning of the staging point back to the mouth of Little Cottonwood Canyon where it should be. The people that live in that area (or made a choice to live in that area) believe we should move it back to the La Caille cut off so they are not impacted. However, that displaces their problem on CH. The original policy has been reinstated but apparently those who live at the base of the canyon forgot they live on a ski road.
2. We have an officer tell us he's retiring in July which co-insides with his new orders...We have a new officer candidate list and are in backgrounds.
3. Rash of auto thefts. Three Hondas stolen this week with shaved keys.

Administrative Services

1. Staff attended harassment training with the Utah Local Governments Trust.
2. Preparations underway for Buttlerville Days.

Community and Economic Development

1. Business Boot Camp--On Thursday, Feb. 11, Beth Strathman (Firebrand Consulting) will teach Six Approaches for More Powerful Communication
2. Business Boot Camp--On Thursday, Feb.18, Jeff Olpin (Positively Critical) will teach Effective Communicating & Coaching a Successful Team.
3. CHBA Luncheon—Tuesday, Feb. 16—Cotopaxi Founder Stephan Jacob will be the guest speaker

Public Works

1. We will have a minor snow event on Thursday, less than 1" expected but they can be the ones that really surprise you if the front moves across the Great Salt Lake.
2. Potholes are becoming a bigger issue as the freeze thaw cycle and all the moisture take their toll on city streets. If you see one please let us know about it ASAP that way we can limit damage claims.
3. The storm drain camera is still down. We are trying to resolve all the issues and get it up and running again. Parts have been ordered and should arrive this week.
